

THE ERMEDÀS COMPLEX

The Ermedàs complex is made up of a group of farmhouses and the Sant Roman chapel.

The farmhouses can be found along the road from Palafrugell and Santa Margarida.

The Sant Ramon chapel is to the west.

Can Fina is opposite.

It has a 16th century watchtower.

The walls from a group of farmhouses form the road.

Some of the farmhouses are from the 12th century.

On the Palafrugell and Mont-ras plain,

many towers have been preserved.

They were built to protect the families that lived on the plain.

The closest towers to Ermedàs are the Mas Petit d'en Caixa Tower and the Mas Borrull Tower.

At first, the towers were isolated buildings.

From the 18th century,

farmhouses were built beside them.

The towers were used for storing tools and harvests from the fields.

The only tower that remains isolated is the Simona Tower.

It is very close to the Ermedàs complex.
